AN ODE TO "YE CHOGHANS! Base Ballers are fine follows,
We needn't tall you that.
Thay every one are day birds.
Yet still they like the "bat."
They are the oddsst kind of menTho! they their besses like
And with their wages are content,
They're always on the "strike." In morals, too, they're rather quoce.
When taken as a race.
For never can they play games fair
Unless they get "first base."
Their "atrikers" are deceitful men.
You'd think not by their face—
However good they're on the "field,"
They're always at "home, base."

And they tire soon, it seems, for they
Their game do always drop,
As they can never play it out
Less they have a good "short stop."
There's one thing, too, wa do not like—
It makes them look like wretches
Who would hunt instets—cach is glad
Whene'er he a "fly catches."

All to our long "home run."

Last September, a young lady in Bangor, Maine, had several teeth extracted while under the influence of ether. After recovering from the effects of the anaesthetic, she felt a slight difficulty in breathing. Soon she began to cough, and would have long intervals of continued coughing, when, (after consulting various physicians,) during a violent fit of coughing, she raised from her lungs, covered with blood and pus, a whole tooth! This she must have swallowed and taken into her lungs at the time of the decital opera-

The Hudson Register tells of a man named John Weson, going into the woods near Boston Corners after berries. While he was at work picking them his eyes lighted on something hidden under a rock which looked like a box covered with moss. John examined it closely, and found it was a box, and on opening it found $5,000 in silver pieces of Spanish coinage. Among the number were five hundred Spanish dollars done up in a bag, on which was some writing, but so destroyed that it was illegible. None of the pieces bore a date later than 1808. The finder has been living for several years past from hand to mouth, working at odd jobs in the summer, and in leisure time picking berries. A later account, however, diminishes the amount to eight hundred dollars.
